

RBTT opens a new ATM and the Ting Wai Market in Roi Santo with a bang!

The number nineteen will be a memorable number for top executives of the RBTT Bank, as it was likely the most eventful the island has likely ever seen since the first ATM was put into place. On Wednesday, December 6 at approximately 7:00 P.M., Bank President Edna Farro had just declared how proud they were to be able to offer this convenience to the residents of Noord, and had snipped the ribbon on the new machine. Assisting her were Ting Wai Market owner Anthony Wu, and General Manager of the RBTT Noord Branch, Cici de Cuba.

To celebrate the occasion, cold fireworks that shoot confetti were set off, two, to be exact. Immediately upon Edna cutting the ribbon, the bang of first one and then the other could be heard, showering the gathering in metallic confetti. A second later a flash and a third bang were seen and heard, and the market and the entire neighborhood were plunged into darkness because a nearby transformer appeared to blow out. What a way to greet a new ATM to the area!

As is usually the case in Aruba, this was only fuel for celebration, and lent a certain “je ne sais quoi” to the event, not dampening anyone’s spirits in the least. Sales and Marketing Manager Robert Moons was quick to note that despite the area being without current, the ATM was still functioning perfectly, as Cici de Cuba was the first to prove. This is very likely a great comfort to RBTT Bank clients, living proof that they can finish their transaction even in the most dire of circumstance.

The inauguration of their nineteenth ATM proved for RBTT Bank the most memorable yet, and a vivid display of their reliability!
